

Anti-Fraud and Bribery

Introduction

Clearway Traffic Solutions Ltd. (CTSL) values its reputation and is committed to maintaining the highest level of ethical standards with regard to the legal financial matters in the conduct of its business affairs. The actions and conduct of CTSL's staff as well as others acting on the CTSL's behalf are key to maintaining these standards.

The purpose of this document is to set out CTSL's policy in relation to bribery and corruption. The policy applies strictly to all employees, partners, agents, consultants, contractors and to any other people or bodies associated with the company within all offices, works areas and functions.

Understanding and recognising bribery and corruption

Acts of bribery or corruption are designed to influence an individual in the performance of their duty and incline them to act in a way that a reasonable person would consider to be dishonest under the circumstances.

Bribery can be defined as offering, promising or giving a financial (or other) advantage to another person with the intention of inducing that person to act or to reward them for having acted in a way which a reasonable person would consider improper under the circumstances. Corruption is any form of abuse of entrusted power for private gain and may include, but is not limited to, bribery.

Bribes are not always a matter of handing over cash. Gifts, hospitality, and entertainment can be bribes if they are intended to influence a decision. For high-risk areas, consider some of the following points:

- How do other companies in the same area operate? Can they recommend particular individuals or groups to work with?
- The relationship with the local or national government. Do we have direct lines of communication with trustworthy officials, and do our operations comply with our company's anti-money laundering and anti-bribery policies?

Penalties

The Bribery Act 2010 came into force on 1st July 2011. Under that Act, bribery by individuals is punishable by up to 10 years imprisonment and/or an unlimited fine. If the company is found to have taken part in bribery or is found to lack adequate procedures to prevent bribery, it too could face an unlimited fine.

A conviction for a bribery or corruption related offence would have severe reputational and/or financial consequences for the company.

Anti-Fraud and Bribery

Policy

CTSL will not tolerate bribery or corruption in any form.

The company prohibits the offering, giving, solicitation or acceptance of any bribe or corrupt inducement, whether in cash or in any other form:

- To or from any person or company wherever located, whether a public official or public body, or a private person or company
- By any individual employee, partner, agent, consultant, contractor or other person or body acting on the CTSL's behalf.
- In order to gain any commercial, contractual, or regulatory advantage for the company in any way which is unethical or to gain any personal advantage, pecuniary or otherwise, for the individual or anyone connected with the individual.

This policy is not intended to prohibit the following practices provided they are appropriate, proportionate and are properly recorded:

- Normal hospitality
- Fast tracking a process which is available to all on the payment of a fee; and/or
- Providing resources to assist a person or body to make a decision more efficiently, provided that it is for this purpose only.

It may not always be a simple matter to determine whether a possible course of action is appropriate. If you are in any doubt as to whether a possible act might be in breach of this policy or the law, the matter should be referred to DAVID GIBBINS who is CTSL's Compliance Officer for Legal Practice (COLP)

The company will investigate thoroughly any actual or suspected breach of this policy, or the spirit of this policy. Employees found to be in breach of this policy may be subject to disciplinary action which may ultimately result in their dismissal.

Key risk areas

Bribery can be a risk in many areas of the company.

Below are the key areas we should be aware of in particular:

- Excessive gifts, entertainment and hospitality can be used to exert improper influence on decision makers. Gifts, entertainment, and hospitality are acceptable provided they are within reasonable limits and are authorised by a Director. Any gift or hospitality, either given or received, over the value of £50 per person should be reported to the COLP and recorded in a register.

Anti-Fraud and Bribery

- Facilitation payments are used by businesses or individuals to secure or expedite the performance of a routine or necessary action to which the payer has an entitlement as of right. The practice will not tolerate or excuse such payments being made.
- Reciprocal agreements or any other form of 'quid pro quo' are never acceptable unless they are legitimate business arrangements which are properly documented and approved by a Director. Improper payments to obtain new business, retain existing business or secure any improper advantage should never be accepted or made.
- Actions by third parties for which the company may be held responsible can include actions by a range of people, e.g., agents, contractors and consultants, acting on the company's behalf. Appropriate due diligence should be undertaken before a third party is engaged. Third parties should only be engaged where there is a clear business rationale for doing so, with an appropriate contract. Any payments to third parties should be properly authorised and recorded.
- Record keeping can be exploited to conceal bribes or corrupt practices. We must ensure that we have robust controls in place so that our records are accurate and transparent. The COLP is responsible for all record keeping.

Employee responsibility and how to raise a concern

The prevention, detection and reporting of bribery or corruption are the responsibility of all Directors and employees of the company. If you become aware or suspect that an activity or conduct which is proposed or has taken place is a bribe or corrupt, then you have a duty to report this to the COLP without delay.
